

It is proven that children learn by example and the violence and lack of morals that they see on prime time TV is setting the worst example that can be set. They are learning that acts of violence and loose morals due not come with consequences.